Topic: “Courageously Interrupting Bias”

Kori Carew is part of a family that is multi-ethnic, multi-racial, multi-religious and spans multiple nationalities. Kori brings a fierce love of community and belonging that transcends differences to her work, ministry and life. She loves to sing, cook, entertain, dance in the hallways at work and read, when she's not equipping leaders to be inclusive, interrupt bias, and disrupt the status quo. At her day job, she focuses on developing and implementing strategies for individual career and diversity and inclusion success, and helps organizations build bridges across differences and improve inclusion. When she's not "working" she focuses her voice and talent on issues of gender equity and rights, inclusion, and human and civil rights, serving in her church and community, and cherishing her phenomenal tribe and community. Kori is energized by helping people live their best lives.
